Pop-Punk Rockers Sum 41 Bring ‘Order in Decline World Tour’ to Soundstage at Graceland

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (September 3, 2019) – Since bursting on to the scene in the late-90s, Canadian rockers Sum 41 have sold out shows around the globe and sold more than 15 million records worldwide. Fresh off a non-stop touring cycle, the band recently released its seventh studio album, Order in Decline, and on October 24, 2019, the GRAMMY nominated pop-punk band will bring its Order In Decline World Tour to The Soundstage at Graceland. The band will be joined by Vagrants as show openers.

This will be the first full headline tour for the band supporting their latest album, which has been applauded by fans and press alike. The lead single from the album, “Out For Blood,” landed the band in the Top 20 of a Billboard airplay chart, currently holding the #17 spot on the Active Rock Radio Chart which has also hit #1 at Sirius XM Octane.

Order In Decline was written on the road during the band’s last world tour. They would start rehearsing riffs during sound checks, guaranteeing that the final product would translate to a live setting seamlessly. Each song kicks in with in your face rock melodies and will blow fans away, inducing a combination of high-energy circle pits from songs like “45 (A Matter Of Time)” and “The New Sensation” as well as gut wrenching moments through songs like “Never There” and “Catching Fire.”

Sum 41 has partnered with PLUS1, an initiative that channels the collective energy of a concert to catalyze social change, and $1 from every ticket sold for the October 24 concert will be donated War Child to support children and families in communities affected by war throughout the world.
